

BROOKHEAD, ROCKCASTLE COUNTY.

—Mr. J. G. Sutton, of the Big Glades, was in town Sunday.

—Hon. James B. McCreary will speak at Brookhead Tuesday, 23d, at 1 o'clock P. M.

—There is considerable sickness among the children of our town and our school has closed until next Monday.

—Mr. Milton Durman, a well to do and respected citizen, who lived about two miles out of town, died last week. It is said that he died of heart affection. Mr. Durman leaves a wife and some heart broken children to mourn the loss of a good husband and father. They all have our heartfelt sympathy.

—There will be a meeting of the democrats of this the 4th district at the Sayers school house next Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, to say who shall run the race for magistrate and constable in this district. J. W. Brown and D. Owens are the applicants for the justice's office and Oscar Reynolds and James L. Hamm are the contending parties for constable.

—Mrs. J. H. Albright has returned home. Mrs. Thos. McRoberts is spending the week in Stanford. Dr. S. C. Perkins, of Bee Lick, was summoned to our town Tuesday. J. J. Painter and wife, of Corbin, have been visiting relatives in this section. Among those who attended church at Mareburg from here Sunday were Thos. Cherry and wife, Prof. J. E. Watson and daughter, Mr. McMurry and Miss Bertie Hiltun and the writer and we were all well paid for our trip. Bro. Collier preached a good sermon and a few of us received a good dinner.

—Little Stella Colyer, daughter of W. H. and Mary Colyer, a bright little blossom of eight years, was cut down by the grim monster death in the form of diphtheria Tuesday at 10 o'clock. Little Stella was a sweet and an extra bright child and one that her teacher and school-mates all loved, and especially did her motherly Sunday-school teacher, Sister Albright, love her. All that any one had to do to love her was to know her. Oh, how much we will miss her out of our Sunday-school. We wish to say to her bereaved father and mother, her little sister and brother, that while it is true little Stella will never stand by the church organ and sing with the choir while her mamma leads the music any more in this world, and those little hands which so willingly helped to light the burdens of others will not administer to us any more in this life, and notwithstanding her little feet that were swift on errands of love have ceased to walk our streets in this world forever, and while all this is sad, yet it is sweet and comforting to know that she will be by the side of Jesus and will sing among the angels, and her little hands will be reaching out to receive you all into the Heavenly home. Her little feet will be walking the golden streets of the City of our God, for Jesus said "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of God."

Then grieve not with hopeless sorrow, Jesus has felt your pain; He did your hands but borrow, He'll give her back again. She took the cup of life to sip, Too bitter 'twas to drain; She put it meekly from her lips, And went to sleep again. Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep, From which none ever wake to weep. A calm and undisturbed repose, Unbroken by the last of foes.

HUBBLE.

—Euhanks Bros. have moved into their new dwelling.

—Ed Miner was called to Louisville Monday night to attend his brother's funeral.

—Prof. T. M. Goodnight and wife, of Frankfort, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Rice.

—Mrs. Fannie Ball has sold two acres of her land near the colored school house to Moria Owsley for $200.

—James B. Gentry and brothers are threshing their crop of timothy and expect to sell the seed rather than bale the hay.

—J. W. Swope's many friends here join his good wife and family in their trouble by meeting them with all sympathy possible.

—Reports come from Mrs. G. P. Bright that she is getting along nicely at Martinsville, Ind., and we are glad to hear that she is pleased with her treatment.

Mrs. George R. Engleman is visiting friends here. Mrs. Eliza Harris is arranging to have her dwelling repaired nicely. Mrs. Jack Yakey has been very sick for a few days, but Dr. Lewis reports her a little better at this writing.

Great wits are sure to madness near allied, And thin partitions do their bounds divide.

Errors, like straws, upon the surface flow; He who would search for pearls must dive below. —Dryden.

—In Lewis county Embury Clark shot 22 gray squirrels without moving beyond the limit of five feet. It is said that squirrels are journeying into the county by thousands.

HUSTONVILLE.

—Will Frye got 10 days on the street, 25 days in jail and costs, for drawing a razor on Weep Jarman.

—Mrs. Sallie Goode sustained a severe injury from a fall the other day. While walking up a gravelly incline her feet slipped, she fell backwards, and broke her hip bone.

—Bro. Miliken, of the Baptist church, baptized a convert at the Christian church Saturday evening, and preached at the Baptist church Sunday. He will preach there every 1st Sunday.

—W. M. Tuttle, a young lawyer of Monticello, is here, but not on legal business, unless courting be called such. Miss Julia Staggs is the beautiful young lady, upon whom he bestows all his attention.

—"Rex" Reid is up from Somerset spending a few days with friends. Miss Buelah VanAradale, who is attending Caldwell College, spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents. J. B. Cook has gone to Lawrenceburg for a few days. Miss Dollie Williams is in Lexington.

Mr. Tilden Cook has accepted a position with Caldwell & Lanier and will begin Monday. Miss Lizzie Fishback, of Danville, is the guest of the Misses Logan.

—Miss Mary Dodd and Mr. D. S. Skinner will be married at the home of the bride next Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock. Messrs. J. H. Hocker and J. H. Reid and Misses Jennie Reid and Julia Staggs are the attendants. Bro. Miliken will perform the ceremony. They will leave at once for Burkesville. You may expect the Hustonville column to be spiced with matrimonial matter from now on indefinitely.

—Gov. McCreary and the prohibitionist, Demaree, addressed a good sized audience at the Presbyterian church Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Demaree spoke first and then excused himself, and well he did or he would have been somewhat embarrassed, when the governor showed the egregious errors he made in his speech. Although there was no fire in the church, the people warmed with enthusiasm, when the ex-governor began speaking and regretted very much to see him close. He shook hands with many friends and staunch supporters, and we are sure his majority in this place will be as great as ever.

—Perhaps no woman who ever lived was loved with a fiercer affection than the wife of Andrew Jackson. After keeping his dueling pistols oiled and the hair-trigger of his temper set all his life on her account, Old Hickory said on his deathbed that he would forgive all his enemies except those who had slandered her.

—During the hunting season, i. e. from October 1st, 1894, to March 31st, 1895, the Norfolk & Western will take free in baggage cars, when accompanied by owner and at their risk, the dogs of sportsmen or hunting parties, not exceeding one dog to each man.

—In the Mission village of Lockwood a Kansas divine preached in the morning on "I'll be Damned if I do and I'll be Damned if I don't, and in the evening on "Seven Miles to Hell."

—Paw-paw beer is being manufactured extensively at this time in Powell county. A pint of it will take the paint off a brick house and make a man forget he has a mother-in-law.

—The Women's Christian Temperance Union of Chicago has retained counsel to begin a crusade against the exhibition of "living pictures" and against objectionable theatrical billboards.

—Beuton, Ky. boasts of a thirteen-year-old "pretty little milkmaid" who weighs 470 pounds, and who has a baby sister who makes the beam tremble at 175 pounds.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEES

E. D. KENNEDY.

Democratic candidate for assessor, was born in Garrard county, 47 years ago, and came to Lincoln when he was 20. He pursued the peaceful avocation of a farmer till 1883, when he took into his head to run for assessor. There were several others already in the field, but when the election came it was Eclipse first, the rest nowhere. He had no opposition from the republicans at the final election, but it would have been all the same if he had. He performed his duties so impartially and satisfactorily that when his four years were up, he was given a clear track so far as his party was concerned and nominated without opposition. Doc Colley ran against him in the final round, but he beat him; as easy as rolling off a log and as Legislator Unthank, of Bell, said when he beat three republicans in a republican stronghold, he could have beat a dozen just as easy.

Last spring Mr. Kennedy shied his castor in the ring again. There were John Bright, J. M. Johnson and M. F. Elkin, three mighty good men, striving for the nomination, but they couldn't beat him and again he was nominated for assessor of Lincoln county, and again he is going to be elected just the same as if a republican was on the track. He is a mighty good man and a capital assessor and the people will have him.

Mr. Kennedy married Miss Mattie Givens, daughter of the late Samuel Givens, a very estimable woman, and they have had 11 children, seven of whom are living. A democrat tried and true, who has never scratched a ticket or sulked in the camp, Mr. Kennedy is eminently deserving of the good things his party has given him and the democrats will see that he is again elected by an overwhelming majority.

GEORGE WASHINGTON DEBORDE.

Born in old Virginia and named for the father of his country and like him, as honorable as he is truthful, the democratic nominee for jailer of Lincoln is an honest old son of toil whom we delight to honor. For 42 years he has made his living and that of a large family by the sweat of his brow over an anvil in a blacksmith's shop, content to serve his party by always voting for its nominees and assisting to that end with his humble means. Getting along in years and seeing a chance to make a living in an easier way, Mr. DeBorde decided to offer himself for the nomination for jailer. There were any number of candidates, but he distanced them all and won hands down by a plurality of 255, just as he is going to distance Brer Petrey by even a larger vote.

Mr. DeBorde came to Kentucky from Washington county, Va., when he was four years old, his father first locating at Somerset. In 1860 he came to Lincoln and with the exception of three years spent in the Confederate army as a private in Capt. Thomas H. Shanks' company, he has made the county his home. He was a gallant soldier and was just the kind of a private that Gen. Gordon describes in his eloquent lecture.

Returning from the war Mr. DeBorde resumed his trade and shortly afterwards married Miss Hannah Foley, of Crab Orchard, who has been to him a loving and true helpmeet. They have seven living children and two dead. Three of his daughters are grown.

Mr. DeBorde is a Baptist, a Mason and an Odd Fellow and stands high in each. He has been frequently the presiding officer of his lodges and has in other ways been honored by them. He strives to live up to the obligations they impose on him and succeeds as well as the next man.

LANCASTER, CARRARD COUNTY.

—Mr. Fischer D. Gaines entertained the Dixie Club in handsome style Monday evening.

—E. H. Jennings, special pension examiner, was here Wednesday working on several cases.

—Mr. Clay Hamilton has sold his interest in the furniture store to his partner, Mr. Charlie Norris.

—Wesley Farris, the youngest child of Mr. Wm. T. West, died Tuesday and was buried in the Lancaster cemetery.

—The flying dutchman proprietors having gotten about all the pickles in town have folded their tent and left.

—Miss Annie Tomlinson gave an elegant birthday party to her young friends Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock.

—Hons. J. Mort Rothwell and Lewis Walker, orators of no small calibre, have been dishing out democratic doctrine to large crowds at the various school houses in the county this week.

—A fair sized audience attended the concert given at the court-house Wednesday evening by the Harvard Quartet. The Ladies' Aid Society, under whose auspices the entertainment was given, lost a little money on their venture.

—Spencer Royston, a hard working negro man of this place, attended the circus at Danville Wednesday and was hauled out of $52 by a slick attache of the show. Royston went with Marshal Arnold to Milledgeville to day to try and recover his money.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Rigney, have the sympathy of the entire community on the loss of their bright little son, Wade Walker, who died Wednesday about 1 o'clock. The little fellow had been suffering for several weeks with fever. The funeral will take place tomorrow, Friday.

—Monday afternoon as Mrs. W. A. Arnold and daughter were driving up Richmond street a heavily loaded wagon ran out depot street and striking the photon tore off one of the hind wheels and threw the occupants out. Fortunately the ladies were not hurt, but they were badly frightened. In about an hour after this happened a wagon loaded with eggs driven by Mr. Stone overturned in the same place. About 100 dozen eggs were broken and a number of cases demolished. Verily, troubles never come singly.

ROWLAND.

—John Adams was kicked by a horse and injured so severely that his recovery is doubtful.

—Judge Shelton is able to be out again. Mrs. Nancy Proctor, of Mt. Vernon, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. B. P. Martin.

—Your correspondent is thankful to "Sretaw" for his poetic effusion in last issue, in which we are associated with the great men of old Mt. Xenia. He treats of withered flowers as Bryant did. The art of embalming, which has been lost so many centuries, has been unearthed by a scientific man of this place. He has given it a fair test and says the corpse is a nice, quiet one and turned perfectly white. This is not told as a matter for creating levity.

—The frost destroyed every green thing in Logan's creek bottoms, even the fodder seed. A few bipeds were saved, having been housed before "Jack" appeared. Tell John Bright that his conjectures of the weather are incomplete, unless he inserts the fact that three frosts equal a rain and cool weather.

—Hollis Carrier has moved to his father's place and will run the blacksmith shop. Mrs. Ashlock is going to move back to the old place on Dix River. Mr. Dyehouse and family have moved from Lebanon Junction to this city. Mrs. Susan Newcomb, of Brookhead, is visiting relatives here. Mrs. Allie Gaines has returned from Missouri, where she has been visiting relatives. Henry Tharp, of Richmond, was here this week.

—It is believed by the knowing ones that the L. & N. will make Rowland the end of a division again. It is claimed that the last change did not produce the savings to the company that had been anticipated. Some changes are also being made among the officials and the new ones may not see like the wise men who vie with each other in claiming the honor of killing Rowland. It is also a fact that they can not do without the buildings and water supply at this place, since they are now sending engines here to be washed out and filled with water, there being none at Corbin. The people would gladly welcome their return, as they invested here believing it would be permanent.

DANVILLE.—The Centre College foot ball team will tackle Vanderbilt University at Nashville, Oct. 20th. W. L. Reed, Jr., only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Reed, of this city, died at Middleboro, of typhoid fever after a short illness. Farris & Whitley sold to Judge Prewitt a load of 1,300 pound cattle at 34c. Love & Will Lillard sold to Thomas Chenault, of Madison, 50 1,100 pound feeding cattle at 34c.—Advocate.

THE democrats of Massachusetts nominated John E. Russell for governor, and a full ticket. Ex Gov. W. E. Russell presided over the convention. The platform endorses the National administration, demands that raw materials be placed on the free list, that the government shall coin metallic money only and that nothing but this coined money shall be a legal tender and every dollar be of equal intrinsic value. The untaxed notes of State and National banks shall be the only paper money and the government shall retire its legal tender as fast as possible. The principle of the income tax is approved and absolute freedom of religious rights are demanded. The democracy will put up the best fight possible, and may reclaim the administration they lost two years ago.

On his return from a foreign shore whither he had gone for the benefit of his health, Congressman W. L. Wilson, was met at his home at Charlestown, W. Va., by a legion of his friends and escorted in triumph to a stand where for over an hour he told of his efforts for tariff reform and the final passage of a bill, which if not exactly as he would have it, is so vast an improvement on the McKinley iniquity that the people must rise up and call the democratic party blessed. Other speakers occupied the platform and the meeting was continued almost without a stop from 1 to 10:30 p. m. The enthusiasm was great and the demonstration seems to foreshadow the triumphant re-election of the great tariff reformer.

On motion of the Hon. John D. White, the injunction against the republican committee in the 11th was dissolved and it was permitted to declare the nominees for Congress, which it did by proclaiming Hon. David Colson, the standard bearer. The effect of this will be that Colson will get his name printed under the eagle and the other candidates will be at a disadvantage. Col. Adams says he is in the fight to the finish and while it is reported that Mr. White will withdraw, it is more than likely that he too will be a candidate to the end. If the democratic convention at Middleboro on the 10th, will act wisely a democrat will represent the Bloody 11th in the next Congress.

Those who make fun of Virginians and other Southerners for using the word "tote" will be surprised to learn that it is not of negro origin as many suppose. The current number of Century devotes a long article to the word. As far back as 1677 it is used in a remonstrance from the people of Gloucester county, Va., which is now preserved in the public record office in London. "Tote" appears to have been a well-understood English word in the 17th century. It meant then, as now, to bear. Burlesque writers who represent a negro as "toting a horse to water" betray their ignorance. In Virginia English the negro "curries" the horse to water by making the horse "tote" him.

SECRETARY HOKER SMITH can see no cause for alarm over the result in Georgia. True Gov. Northern's majority was 63,000, but the republicans had no candidates that year and did not endorse the populist nominees as they did this year. The vote should be compared with the presidential election of 1892, when the democratic majority was 35,000, only about 5,000 more than this year, which can be accounted for by the light vote polled. It is noticeable, too, that no reduction of majorities took place in districts where the fight was conducted in line with a platform demanding a sound currency.

GEORGE DENNY is begging the democrats of the 7th to stally themselves by voting to send him to Congress just one little term. This he says they can do without being found out under our beautiful secret ballot system. The raring Bull of Bashan's gall o'er leaps itself. The democrat who would vote for him ought to be put in the penitentiary for perjury, especially if he participated in the primary.

THERE may be democrats mean enough to vote the republican ticket or refrain from voting at all because their men were not chosen in the primary, but we can't believe any such creatures live in Lincoln county. The man who would take part in a primary election and then oppose the nominees is devoid of honor and would go back on any obligation, however sacred. Let no such man be trusted.

SENATOR BLACKBURN, in speaking of the candidacy of Gov. Buckner for the U. S. Senate, says if he has to be beaten he would rather the Gray Eagle of Glen Lily would do it than anybody. The Senator evidently doesn't think that the ex-governor is in it and as trying to bait his following with taffy.

THERE is one populist less in Georgia. In Early county one adherent of that peculiarly wild party and a democrat quarreled over the election result. Words waxed warmed and a bloody battle resulted in which the democrat's pop got a bead on the pop. and sent him to Kingdom come.

I am prepared to house and take care of a large number of any sized flowers or foliage plants during the coming winter, or I will rent sections of my pit to persons who prefer to take care of their own plants. Mrs. W. H. Miller.

HON. W. H. MILLER entertained Gov. McCreary and a number of friends at supper Tuesday night, and a season of refreshments and good cheer was enjoyed. The supper which consisted of nearly everything good to eat was served in courses on a table beautifully decorated with roses and other flowers, and showed how well versed Mrs. Miller, who gracefully presided, is in the culinary art.

CHARLEY HAZLETT received a letter from his brother, J. T. Hazlett, who is section foreman in Estill county, containing a piece of the rope with which Richardson, the man who was hung by a mob for the murder of Mrs. White, was executed. The hanging was from a bridge on Mr. Hazlett's section, and he writes very much like he was one of the hangers, but he doesn't say so in so many words.

AN old time barbecue in honor of Hon. James B. McCreary will be given at Nicholasville next Wednesday. Besides the Congressman, the other speakers will be Gov. Brown, Gen. P. Watt Hardin, Hon. Cassius Clay, Attorney General Hendrick and Senator Blackburn. Two bands of music have been engaged and it will be a day of rejoicing and hand-shaking among the democrats. Guss Janbert will make the burgoo and arrangements will be made to feed 5,000 people.

When a doctor or a preacher gets to monkeying in politics he becomes a failure in everything. Dr. Roberts, the republican candidate for Congress, the "dumb man from Madison" might have made a success financially had he stuck to his profession. As it is he is out of practice and his dependence on politics is very poor indeed. This week a republican brother sold him out of house and home for a debt he ought to have easily paid, if like a shoe-maker he had stuck to his last.

STANFORD NOT IN IT.—Mr. W. F. McClary tells us that the meeting of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows held at Paris this week was well attended, nearly every lodge in the State being represented. The session was held at the court-house. Bowling Green was first choice for next place of meeting, the rest nowhere. The members of the local lodge at Paris gave a banquet on Wednesday evening in honor of the delegates and other visiting members, which was a success in every particular. Odd Fellowship seems to be on a boom in Kentucky.

Did you ever notice how funny the average man regards swearing? He will laugh at it when decent people ought to show their deep disgust. Our misguided prohibition friend, Brer Demaree, who imagines he is running for Congress, has evidently discovered the weakness of certain people for seeing wit in cursing and the interlards the numerous anecdotes with which he fills his speeches with "cuss" words, which seem to be the only point in them. For instance this is the way he tells this old chestnut: A man killed a hog and left it out that night to cool. Next morning half of it was gone. "Some d—n democrat stole that meat," said he. "How do you know a d—n democrat stole it?" was asked. "Because if a d—n republican had stole it, he would have taken it all." This brought down the house of course, as men are only boys grown tall and laugh like school children at anything. At Hustonville, it was suggested to Brer Demaree that as they would use the Presbyterian church for the speaking, he ought to discard his profane recitals, and he only forgot himself once and used a "d—n it." As we hear that Brer Demaree also "works" as a Methodist preacher, he ought to set a better example and not presume that his audience is made up of fools, who think profanity the doubly compounded quintessence of wit.

Two houses for rent. C. C. Withers.

GENTLEMEN, see our line of underwear. Severance & Son.

PAY your 1894 taxes at once and save 6 per cent. J. N. Menefee, sheriff.

SOME scamp attempted to get into Dr. R. L. Davison's room Wednesday night, but a pistol shot or two scared him away.

ANOTHER frost, a killing one this time, came Wednesday, making three and yet the unparalleled drouth continues. "Fair, warmer Friday," says old probs.

Mrs. PAMELA BROWN has a banana plant on exhibition at W. B. McRoberts' drug store, which is attracting considerable attention. It is about 10 feet high and if it gets through the winter all right, Mr. J. S. Wells, who knows what he's talking about, says it will bear fruit next year.

HAVING given the pictures and pedigrees of the members of the democratic county ticket, we are now preparing at great cost and much labor to present the republican ticket. Some of the members are rather short in pedigree, but what they lack in that we shall make up in picture and try to even things up with them.

MR A. A. LEWIS writes from Somerset: "The friends of Col. Silas Adams throughout his district, incensed at the outrageous manner in which he has been treated by the alleged injunction proceedings, are insisting that he run the race to a finish and have called a convention of republicans to meet in Somerset Tuesday, Oct. 16, at 10 o'clock, a. m., for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Congress. The Colonel is in the fight to win."

AFTER a triumphant tour of the county during which he spoke at four places to enthusiastic crowds and was everywhere received with marked attention, Gov. McCreary left for Richmond yesterday. He has a very strong hold on the people of this county, and they will give him the usual majority. Our people appreciate genuine merit and recognize that Gov. McCreary has served them and the country at large in a way to commend him to all thinking people.

A RATHER RACY bit of news comes from Crab Orchard Springs. Among those who are taking the Keeley cure there is a couple from Owensboro, whom we shall call Jones. He is there the fourth time for dipsomania and she for the opium habit. Other dramatic persons are, a lady from Frankfort, the marshal of Nicholasville and a man from London. The story goes that while Mr. Jones was very ill from the effects of the drastic drugs, his wife, who is inclined to be lively, took a moonlight drive with the marshal and the Frankfort lady with the London man. Mr. Jones did not catch on to his wife's indiscretion, and things went on smoothly till the marshal's return to Nicholasville. It seems that the London man had somehow or somehow another gotten the Frankfort lady's diamond ring during the memorable moonlight drive and had gone home with it. She wrote to the Nicholasville man to try to get it for her and in her letter she told him Mrs. Jones sent her love. This indeed the marshal, who is also said to be a masher, to write to Mrs. Jones, at least that's the way the story goes, which he denies. The letter was of a decidedly saccharine nature and spoke of her telling him that she was going to get a divorce from the old cumbudgeon. After the marshal left it seems that another jag got smitten with Mrs. Jones' many charms and to make him jealous, she was flirting the letter in his face. As luck would have it, Mr. Jones passed by the room as she did so and that night he demanded the letter. She wouldn't give it to him, so he laid low and waited till she got wrapped in the arms of Morpheus and set out on a still hunt for it. His efforts were rewarded and his eyes fairly started from their sockets as he read the tell tale lines. He awoke his wife and berated her for her falsity and infidelity. There was a "wow and a wampus," but like all earthly things, it finally came to an end and Mr. Jones, slept the sleep of the weary with the letter in one of the pocket of his robe de nuit. Mrs. Jones waited for her chance and getting the letter consigned it to the flames just as the old man awoke. There was more trouble, but the couple at last kissed and made up and all went well again, but only for a short time. Saturday the marshal telegraphed that he would arrive at midnight with a patient and this coming to the ears of Mr. Jones he laid for him. He secured Manager Gus Hofmann's gun, but that gentleman after much persuasion and some prevarication, succeeded in getting it from him and putting Jones to bed. On his arrival Mr. Hofmann apprised the marshal of the sanguinary state of affairs and asked him to keep in the shade. He did so for a while, but finally Jones ran on him Sunday morning and drawing a knife, tried to plunge it into the vitals of the man he thought had dishonored him. By-standers interposed, the marshal protected his innocence, peace was patched up temporarily and the marshal conducted by a round-about way to the depot, where he took the train, glad doubtless to get out of the reach of the infuriated husband. The fracas caused great excitement and but for the timely aid of friends, we would have had to record a real tragedy instead of relating a story possessing much of a farce comedy in its nature.

By some means we failed to mention in our last issue Judge Varnon's speech county court day, urging the democrats to go to the polls Nov. 6, and vote the entire ticket. We also omitted accidentally as reference to a delightful party at Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Hudman's a few nights previous.

THOU ART A LIGHT.
O Love, thou art to me a light
That shines upon my way,
And guides me through the lonesome night
Unto a sweeter day.

For when I see thy face
I feel an influence on my heart
Of sweet and heavenly grace.
No stained thought the soul can soil.
When thou, my Love, art near—
No low desire, no word of guile,
Nor passion's influence.
O stay with me and be my love,
My light, my angel pure!
And I to thee will faithful prove
While earthly days endure.

A TIMELY SHOT.
A Boy's Adventure in the Wilds of Africa.

The anxiety and distress of Ralph Campbell, a youthful master's mate from the survey gun ship Petrel, were beyond description when, on awakening one morning in his quarters—an African hut on a bank of the Senegal river, up which he had been sent a long distance on government business—he discovered that his little brother, Frank, was missing.

Frank was a bright, clever boy of twelve, who had accompanied his brother from the ship, which was anchored outside the bar. He was the captain's nephew, and was a general pet and favorite aboard the vessel, where he had been receiving instructions to fit him for naval duties.

Ralph, who now had all his cutter's crew looking for the lost lad, worried much over the perils to which the little fellow might be exposed from venomous serpents and wild beasts.

At length, while searching in the thick shrubbery on the river's bank, the youth reached a cove where, on the night before, he had left a small canoe which he had bought of one of the natives.

He had intended to use it for navigating some of the shallow creeks further up the river, as the cutter he had charge of was too deep and wide for that purpose. Startled to perceive that the canoe was missing, a suspicion of the truth broke all at once upon his mind.

He remembered having remarked to a sailor, in Frank's hearing, that the little craft must be brought up and made fast to the latter the first thing in the morning. The boy, eager to please his brother, had probably risen and gone, before any of the rest of the party were awake, to fetch the canoe, but if so, what had become of him? Ralph, shuddering, thought of the hideous crocodiles that infested this river, while he vainly scanned it for some sign of the lad.

Then, having resolved not to wait for the return of his men, but to take the cutter and go off alone in search of his lost brother, he hurried back to the bank in front of the hut, alongside of which the boat lay.

This boat was a light, swift one, which could be easily sculled by an oar. There was a small, loaded swivel ready for use, fixed in the bow, but its weight would not interfere with the speed of the craft.

The young officer was soon vigorously sculling the vessel on its way, going with the tide, as he thought that Frank would have been apt to take this course. Past lofty elevations covered with shrubbery and flowers glided the cutter, often shadowed by the far-reaching branches of huge baobab trees that formed broad green arches above it.

It had rounded a peninsula full of bloom and foliage, when the watchful youth saw ahead of him an overturned, broken canoe. He soon reached it, and, by the peculiar carving on the bow, he recognized it as the missing canoe.

It had been partly crushed—most likely, he thought, by the teeth of a crocodile.

In dismay, he pulled Frank's little cap from a jagged projection of the broken wood on which it was caught. The dreadful truth forced itself on his mind.

"The lad had been pursued by the monster that had destroyed the canoe. Had he already met his fate? The young officer tried to shake off his despondency—to hope, in spite of appearances, that his brother might, in some way, have escaped and still be alive.

He looked toward the peninsula from which the canoe seemed to have drifted. This peninsula, consisting of two high, projecting banks composed of soft rock and earth, opposite each other, about fifteen feet apart, was roofed by the branches of slender trees that flourished in wild luxuriance on both banks.

The trunks of these trees slanted so that their boughs intermingled and were so thickly interwoven with vines that they formed a dense canopy of leaves and blossoms over the open space beneath, which thus resembled a sort of long water cavern.

Ralph directed the cutter to this cavern, and, looking through the green archway into the partial obscurity beyond, he beheld a sight well calculated to arouse apprehension.

In the back part of the cavern, lying in a shallow, among sandbanks that partially concealed it, was a large crocodile, with its head raised and thrown back and its horrible jaws wide open, while its eyes were strained, as if turned up toward some elevated point.

Gazing in the same direction, Ralph was startled to see, about ten feet above those hideous jaws, the form of his little brother, lying, with pale face and closed eyes, on the narrow shelf of a rock. The rock was under the branches of slender trees, which rose on each side of it from low banks on the right and left, about two yards from the elevation. One of the overhanging branches, broken off, explained the boy's situation.

He had evidently climbed the tree to escape the crocodile, had crept out on the slender branch, it had given way, and he had fallen on the rock, his head striking it with force enough to render him unconscious. There he now lay, so perilously near the edge of the rock-shelf that the slightest movement on his part would cause him to roll off and fall into the jaws of the monster below. As he was probably but temporarily stunned, he was liable to move at any moment. It was, therefore, of the utmost importance, in order to insure his safety, that he should be speedily conveyed from his dangerous position.

Ralph feared that a discharge of the swivel or of any firearm at the crocodile, would only be attended with fatal results to Frank. The sandbanks might hinder the shot from striking the fierce reptile, while the shock would be pretty sure to dislodge the senseless lad from the shelf, and thus bring him down into the power of his voracious enemy.

The youth lost no time in heading his boat toward the rock. But the cutter was some fathoms from it, when the keel caught in a submerged sandbank. Drawing his sword, Ralph sprang out, and quickly waded toward the rock. Slight ledges and protruding spurs on its front would enable him, he thought, to climb up to his brother; in fact, there was no other way of reaching him. The young officer held his sword ready for use, in case the crocodile, close to which he would be obliged to pass, should venture to attack him.

Ralph, however, kept his eyes fastened upon the crocodile.

The monster turned its head when he was near it and snapped at him. He avoided it by stepping sideways; then he commenced to strike and thrust vigorously at its jaws with his sword. It retreated a few yards but broke his blade in two with its teeth as it twisted its body around. Thinking it would leave him, Ralph sprang to the rock. Just then little Frank, recovering his senses, gave a slight cry and fell from the ledge above. The young officer saw him in time to catch him in his arms. As he turned to convey him to the cutter, he perceived that the crocodile, now between him and the boat, with open jaws, was prepared to renew the attack.

He set his confused brother upon his feet in the shallow water, and drawing the single-barreled nary pistol which he carried in his belt, he fired at the creature's big, yawning mouth. But, owing to the animal's sheering a little to seize the boy, now on one side of his protector, it received the shot on the edge of its jaw.

Twisting itself away from the twain, it commenced, as if in blended rage and pain, to thrash the shallows with its hard, bony tail.

As Ralph was conveying his brother past the reptile, toward the boat, his left ankle caught between two small under-water rocks, and was temporarily sprained.

"Never mind," said Frank, as the hurt youth dragged himself along with difficulty, "I am now able to walk. You need not carry me. I will help you."

He disengaged himself from Ralph's arms, seized his hand and tried to assist him. The crocodile had turned by this time toward the two, for another attack. But they were now within a yard of the cutter, and though suffering excruciating pain, the young officer caught up his brother's light form and tossed him into the boat. The crocodile was close to Ralph, but he contrived to escape it with a forward movement and to roll himself across the gunwale of the cutter. He went over on his back, with his head on the edge of the bow. While he was trying to turn and right himself, which his sprain would hinder his doing quickly, the hideous open jaws of the monster appeared over the bow. They were very near the head of the prostrate youth. He would not be able to move it in time to elude those horrible fangs. But at this critical moment his young brother, who had noticed that the crocodile's jaws were on a line with the swivel, sprang forward with ready decision and discharged the piece.

Never was a shot more effective. It plowed its way nearly through the full length of the huge reptile's body, killing the animal almost instantly. Ralph praised his brother for the quick judgment and swift action which had thus been the means of saving him from a terrible fate.

In fact, the presence of mind and promptitude shown by the little fellow on this occasion won the admiration and applause of all the seamen aboard the ship, when, in time, it was made known to them.

Not long after the gun had been fired, the rising of the tide floated the cutter clear of the sandbank, enabling Ralph, with Frank's assistance, to get back to the landing-place fronting the hut, where some of the sailors who had returned from their vain search for the lad joyfully hailed his appearance. Frank's explanations about the canoe, as well as of his situation on the rock, verified his brother's previous conjectures on the subject. The boy had gone to the canoe to convey it to the cutter, had been pursued by the crocodile, and by vigorous paddling had reached the water cavern. So close to him then was the reptile that, as he sprang out of the canoe to climb the tree, the jaws of the monster closed over the frail vessel, partly crushing it. Bottom up, and with Frank's cap, which had fallen from his head, caught on the broken wood, the little craft had drifted off with the current, to be afterward found by Ralph as described.—Rufus Hall, in N. Y. Ledger.
